Camp K'Ton-Ton will run every weekday morning from 9:00 A.M. until 12:30 P.M. (day care will be available from 8:00 A.M. on for a small extra charge). Youngsters will bring lunch; the camp provides a mid-morning snack. Parents may choose a three-morning or five-morning schedule. The camp will run for eight weeks - from

Fees for each two-week session are: $65. (5 mornings) and $45 (3 mornings). Discounts are available if children register for multiple sessions and also for more than one child from the same family. Camper-ship assistance is also available. Center members receive an additional 10% discount.

Governor Brennan Speaks On The Holocaust

Remarks of Governor Joseph E. Brennan
Holocaust Reception
Blaine House
Augusta, Maine
April 23, 1985

It is a singular honor and privilege to welcome all of you to the Blaine House, as we observe the "Days of Remembrance of Victims of the Holocaust."

Two times in my life, during my travels, I was especially confronted with the stark reality of the Holocaust.

Once when I was in Israel, and visited the memorial of Yad Va-shem.

And another time - a cold, sunless, and bitter November day -- when I visited Dachau.

These were moving and painful experiences, which I shall never forget.

And I know that realistically, most people in Fryeburg and Lewiston and Caribou - and all the small towns across Maine - will never go to Israel and Germany.

For them, and for many of us, we must find other ways to keep the memory alive.

We need to remember how one of the most civilized, cultured, and scientifically advanced nations in the world perpetrated - in cold blood - the most evil crime in all of human history.

Today we need to remember, so that it will never, ever, happen again.

"Remember the days of old," Moses said to his people. "Ask your father, and he will show you; your elders, and they will tell you." (Dt. 32:7).

Later we will hear from our eldest people who will help us remember: those who survived; those who liberated; and then their children.

It takes a special kind of courage to speak publicly about such intensely private experiences of pain and personal loss.

And it takes a special kind of sensitivity to truly listen to what is being said.

Anthony Lewis wrote in the Sunday New York Times, and I quote:

"When the Nazi death camps are discussed, there is a scene that comes to my mind. An SS guard holds the hand of a small child, a 4 year old, and leads him up the steps to the gas chamber.

"We who were not there can never fully know what it was like to experience such honor; to be in a world of absolute evil. But we know one thing from those who were there and survived. They were sustained by the faith that one day the human spirit would prevail; that mankind would see the evil for what it was, and condemn it forever

"That is the framework in which to place President Reagan's statement that the German soldiers of World War II 'were victims just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps.' For what his words tell us is that he sees nothing unique in the evil of the Holocaust; he sees no difference between war and genocide."

There is a world of difference between 4 year old being led to the chamber, and the SS soldier leading him — who may have been shot later, and buried in a cemetery in Bitburg.

The President, who I truly believe is a decent human being, has made a mistake.

In the deepest part of his being -- he must know it.

What has happened in this world that one cannot acknowledge or admit a mistake?

We all make mistakes.

We are all human.

We are all fallible — whether we are President, or something else.

As Elie Weisel said so poignantly at the White House: "The issue is not politics, but good and evil. That place, Mr. President, is not your place."

Yet there is a certain irony to the clearly wrong choice of visiting a cemetery at Bitburg, where a number of SS troopers are buried.

The irony is that because of the world attention now on the visit, more Americans, more Germans -- indeed more people throughout the world -- will reflect on the horror that took place in the death camps, while much of the world stood still.

And after all, that is the ultimate purpose of the "Days of Remembrance of Victims of the Holocaust" which we are now observing.

So let us resolve together today: that through these bitter memories, we will strengthen our commitment to do what we can do in our own lives, to reduce the amount of human suffering and mistreatment of other human beings -- which still, tragically, exists in many parts of this world.

Thank You.

Ethiopian Jewry: Daring Rescue Tales of Heroism, Love and Determination

Remove Watermark Now

Susan Poyas

Israel Today Senior Correspondent, Israel

JERUSALEM — Sandy Leeder, a red-bearded Californian accountant in his '30's hugged the old man, Yeshay Elias, and kissed him on both cheeks. Excitement choked both their voices. "He is like my father and my child," Sandy told Israel Today.

They met for the first time since Sandy plucked Yeshay and 17 other black Ethiopian Jews, including women and children, in the middle of a night in April 1983 from the teeming refugee camp and drove them 850 miles across the desert and swamp to a plane which brought them to "The Promised Land."

The meeting between Sandy and Elias was just one of the emotional reunions between two dozen brave Americans and hundreds of Ethiopian Jews they helped save from famine-stricken Africa in daring rescue missions organized by the American Association for Ethiopian Jewry (AAEJ) during 1983 and 1984 before the Israeli government got into the act in full swing.

They came in buses from seven immigrant absorption centers throughout the country for the AAEJ-sponsored festive gathering to celebrate during Pesach their exodus from the bondage of starvation and alienation.

The older men came in dark suits and their wives in traditional long dresses and headscarves while the younger men and women came in blue jeans, colorful shirts, wind jackets and sneakers, evidence of their quick integration into the new lifestyle.

Some 15,000 Ethiopian Jews have now been brought to Israel, half of them during "Operation Moses," the three-month airlift from November to January, while almost all the rest had come during the previous two years.

About 8,000 Jews are still left in Ethiopia, many of them elderly and vulnerable as most of the younger, stronger ones have already arrived here, Nate Shapiro, President of the AAEJ told Israel Today.

He said they are dispersed in the Gondor, Tigre and Wollo regions all hit by famine. "Each of the Ethiopian Jews at this reception has relations still there," Shapiro said, "What good can anybody get out of not permitting those still stranded to join their families here?" Shapiro, like other Americans, flew in especially for the reunion.

He estimated that about 28,000 Jews lived in Ethiopia in 1965. They were not allowed to own property and were considered strangers although they lived there for over 2,000 years. They were known as Falashas, a derogatory word meaning alien.

One eighth to tenth who set out to reach Israel died on the journey, Shapiro said. "They walked hundreds of miles through hostile, mountainous land with almost no food and water. The refugee camps across the border were infested with disease. So many of the elderly and weak could not take the torturous journey," he said.

Shapiro described as "still tense" relations between the AAEJ and the Jewish Agency which at first tried to stop the Ethiopians from reaching the reunion.

"Our aim has been to put pressure on the Israel government to help save our brethren. It was only after we showed it could be done and they could be rescued that the authorities here overcame their reluctance," Shapiro charged.

The rescuers, from all over the U.S., as well as one Belgian and two French doctors, worked in twos and threes and spent anywhere from two weeks to three months helping rescue Jews. On each mission they drove groups of 10 to 18 people hundreds of miles to waiting planes.

Thomas O'Rourke, a construction worker from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. was involved in the rescue efforts for five months in 1983. He was arrested in September 1983 and thrown into jail for two months. "I was in a cell, slept on a concrete floor, was given dirty water to drink and beans to eat, which I had to pay for. I lost 60 lbs. in two months," O'Rourke told Israel Today.

O'Rourke, himself not a Jew, said he observed more Jewish religious customs when he was among the Ethiopian Jews than he normally does in America where he has many close Jewish friends.

"They maintained their Jewish religious customs even in those terrible conditions, — no food, no medical care, privacy. It was a special experience. They are a proud, beautiful people."

Gedalya, 44 has been in Israel for one year after being rescued by Henry Rosenberg, an AAEJ leader from New York. His wife and six children arrived two months earlier. Gedalya underwent a 12-hour operation in Israel to save his left leg mangled while he was tortured in prison where he spent a total of 26 months since 1978 when he was first arrested on charges of subversion for teaching Hebrew and love of Israel.

"The authorities knew I was teaching the children how to go to Israel," Uzuia told Israel Today in perfect Hebrew. It was due to the intervention of AAEJ that he was freed from jail and managed to flee the country.

Winners Of 1985 National Jewish Book Awards Announced By JWB

Remove Watermark Now

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Rabbi Joseph B. Soloveitchik, Orthodox Jewish theologian and talmudic scholar, and Joan Peters, a former White House consultant on the Middle East, are among the winners of the 1985 National Jewish Book Awards. Blu Greenberg, president of the JWB Jewish Book Council, announced this week.

Rabbi Soloveitchik, who teaches at Yeshiva University and is known as the "Rav" ("Rabbi par excellence") won the book award in the category of Jewish Thought for his volume, Halakhic Man, which was translated from the Hebrew by Lawrence Kaplan. The Jewish Publication Society is the publisher.

Halakhah refers to the corpus of Jewish law, both as a metaphysical system and as a practical way of life.

Joan Peters won the book award in the Israel category for her volume, From Time Immemorial: The Origins of the Arab-Jewish Conflict Over Palestine (Harper & Row).

From Time Immemorial is the product of seven years of original research by Peters, who writes, "The Arabs believe that by creating an Arab Palestinian identity, at the sacrifice of the well-being and the very lives of the 'Arab refugees', they will accomplish politically through 'guerilla warfare' what they failed to achieve in military combat: the destruction of Israel."

Winners of the other categories are:

Fiction — Frederick Busch for Invisible Mending (David R. Godine, Publisher).

Holocaust — David S. Wyman for The Abandonment of the Jews: America and the Holocaust 1941-1945 (Pantheon).

Biography — Maurice Friedman for Martin Buber's Life and Work: The Later Years 1945-1965 (E.P. Dutton).

Jewish History — Naomi W. Cohen for Encounter With Emancipation: The German Jews in the United States, 1830-1914 (The Jewish Publication Society).

Scholarship — Seymour Feldman for his translation of The Wars of the Lord: Book One — Immortality of the Soul by Levi Ben Gershom (Gersonides) (The Jewish Publication Society).

Children's Literature — Gary Provost and Gail Levine-Freidus for Good If It Goes (Bradbury Press).

Illustrated Children's Book — Amy Schwartz for Mrs. Moskowitz and the Sabbath Candlesticks (The Jewish Publication Society).

Visual Arts — Evelyn M. Cohen for The Rothchild Mahzor: Florence, 1492 (The Library/Jewish Theological Seminary of America).

Yiddish — Shea Tenenbaum for Fun Ash Un Fayer Iz Dayn Kroyn ["From Ash and Fire Is Your Crown"] (CYCO Publishing House).

Two of the 12 winners — David Wyman and Joan Peters — are Christian.

The Council will confer the book awards in 11 categories on Thursday, June 6 at 7 p.m. at the New York Public Library, Fifth Ave., at 42nd St., Manhattan.

At the June 6 ceremony, cash prizes of $750 each and certificates of recognition will be given to the winning authors and citations will be given to their publishers.

Among the past winners of the Awards — widely considered to be the highest recognition in American Jewish literature — are Cynthia Ozick, Isaac Bashevis Singer, Elie Wiesel, Bernard Malamud, John Hersey, Irving Howe, Leon Uris and Philip Roth.

The JWB Jewish Book Council seeks to promote American Jewish literary creativity and an appreciation of Jewish literature.

In addition to conferring the annual National Jewish Book Awards, it sponsors Jewish Book Month, publishes the trilingual Jewish Book World, syndicates "Jewish Books in Review," issues Jewish Book World and serves as a clearing house for information about Jewish books. Blu Greenberg is Council president; Ruth S. Frank is director.

JWB is the leadership network of and central service agency for 275 Jewish Community Centers, YM-YWHAs and camps in the U.S. and Canada serving more than 1 million Jews.

It serves the North American Jewish community in informal Jewish education and Jewish culture through the JWB Lecture Bureau, Jewish Media Service/JWB, JWB Jewish Book Council, JWB Jewish Music Council and projects related to Israel.

At the same time, JWB is the U.S. government-accredited agency for the religious, Jewish educational and recreational needs of Jewish military personnel, their families and patients in VA hospitals.

JWB is supported by Federations, the UJA-Federation Campaign of Greater New York, Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHAs and JWB Associates.

Summer In Kibbutz & Jerusalem

The Kibbutz Aliya Desk is offering a new program, beginning this summer, that will feature four weeks of kibbutz work, a session at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem and a week of touring, it has been announced by Ken Bob, the agency's director.

The program, dubbed "Summer in Kibbutz and Jerusalem", is open to applicants between the ages of 18 and 27 and is scheduled to start at the end of June.

It becomes the sixth program sponsored by the Kibbutz Aliya Desk on a regular basis, according to Bob, who said "the new program will give students a unique opportunity to spend the summer exploring kibbutz life while continuing their studies."

"The month of kibbutz living will feature a special course on kibbutz society and the 'adoption' of participants by kibbutz families - both," Bob added, "intended to provide the student with a solid understanding of and a real feel for the kibbutz lifestyle."

A total of five to seven credits can be earned on the program through the summer session at The Hebrew University, during which students can enroll in up to two classes, and through the kibbutz course, entitled "The Kibbutz: Theory and Reality."

The session at The Hebrew University, lasting three and a half weeks, will take place at the school's Mount Scopus campus.

The program also will include a week of touring that will feature visits to historical sites in the Dead Sea area, Jerusalem, and other areas.

In addition to "Summer in Kibbutz and Jerusalem", the Kibbutz Aliya Desk sponsors a number of other programs for students and young adults. The programs include "Kibbutz University Semester in Israel", combining kibbutz work and a full semester at Haifa University; the six-month Kibbutz Ulpan; "Short Summer Ulpan on Kibbutz", lasting eight weeks; and "Temporary Worker on Kibbutz", requiring a minimum commitment of a month.

Students and young adults interested in any of the programs, including "Summer in Kibbutz and Jerusalem", should write to the Kibbutz Aliya Desk at 27 West 20th Street, 9th floor, New York, NY 10011 or should call (212) 255-1338.

Beth Abraham Breaks Ground

Formal ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Beth Abraham Synagogue were held at noon on Thursday, April 25, 1985. Fifteen months exactly after a devastating fire destroyed the original fifty-year old Synagogue, the officers, building committee and congregation members gathered to begin construction of a one-story design brick and cedar structure. City Manager, John Flynn, along with Bangor Mayor, Tom Davis, expressed the best wishes of the city on this undertaking.

"This is truly an historic day for us" said Sam Nyer, President of the Congregation, as he turned the first shovelfull of earth. Speaking to the media, Rabbi Henry Isaacs expressed the hope that Beth Abraham and its members would continue to be a source of pride to the City of Bangor and a good neighbor to the surrounding area.

William McHenry of Orono is the architect of the modern building, but the interior will retain much of the flavor of the old Beth Abraham. Some of the original furnishings as well as the Ark have been refurbished so that it will have a familiar look.

E.L. Shea of Ellsworth is the general contractor. The Building Committee includes Judy Cooper and Fred Hartstone, Co-Chairmen; Howard and Norma Berg, Louise Shindler and Steve Emery, Mickey Schneider, Darrel Cooper, Jerry and Priscilla Williams, Max Striar, and Sam Nyer, President.

A Fall completion date is scheduled.

A Bullet In The Head For A Pregnant Girl

The heading of a news item published in the Israeli newspaper YEDIOT-AHARONOT on April 8, 1985.

From the Consulate General of Israel, Boston, Mass.

Western reporters in Beirut have blamed, on numerous occasions, the Israel Defense Forces of misconduct basing their stories on "information" received from the Lebanese press and from other sources.

Following is a translation into English of the item.

An Israeli doctor with the IDF's Civilian Assistance Unit to Southern Lebanon revealed, over the weekend, an incident in which Israel's reputation was libelled in the Lebanese press.

Dr. Pe'er, the doctor on duty with the IDF's Civilian Assistance Unit at the hospital in Marjayoun (in southern Lebanon) was treating a 17-year-old-girl from the village of Lubiya, in eastern Lebanon. The girl was in critical condition, with a bullet in her head.

Her parents related at first that she had been shot by the Israelis. Later, however, they withdrew this version and declared that she had been shot by (Lebanese) extremists because her husband was serving in the Southern Lebanese Army. The parents decided to tell the Lebanese press about "Israeli brutality to their daughter."

When the girl died in hospital, Dr. Pe'er decided to examine her with ultrasound. To his surprise, he discovered that she was two months pregnant. Told of this, the father confessed that it was he who had shot his daughter because she had stained the family honour.

April 1, 1985

Recently we received a generous donation of $5000 from our friend Mr. I.E. Dresner. On behalf of the children of our Villages in Beer Yaacov and Herzeliya I would like to thank you for your help and influence.

As you know our Villages are connected with Youth Aliyah in Israel and most of our children in the villages are sent to us through them.

Thank you very much again for your cooperation. All the best and have a happy and a Kosher Passover.

Sincerely yours,
Shlomo Ron
Israeli Representative

1985 - 1986 Community Calendar Being Prepared

The Jewish Community Center sponsored calendar, which will be ready for distribution in advance of Rosh Hashanah is now in the preparation stage.

The "JCC Community Calendar" will accept any personal announcements such as birthdays, anniversaries, yahzeits, Bar and Bat Mitzvahs, etc. The deadline for insertion is June 12, 1985. Please use the handy tear-out coupon below and sent it to the JCC.

COST: 50c per insertion $2.50 for one calendar; $2.00 each for two calendars or more. Add $1.00 for mailing and handling per.

TERMS: Payment with coupon, payable to JCC.

Chairperson of this project is Helen Michelson and she said that this is a perfect opportunity of allowing your friends and family to know of a simcha or other announcement.

In addition, organizations are encouraged to submit announcements of up-coming events for the entire community to view. When placed in easy to see spots, it creates a constant visual reminder of your announcement.

The Hebrew months, days, holidays, candle lightings, and Torah portion of the week will be prominently displayed.

Display prominently for easy referral. Send them to family and friends out of town.
