The Tenth Annual Food Fair un- J der the auspices of the Hyde Light 1 Guards opened Tuesday evening at the Alameda and it i the most successful of ۶ ten openings. The i the exhibitors were surprised, the management pleased and the crowd happy. To the left of the entrance on the floor is the exhibit of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. under the supervision of Jere N. Haskell of the contract department. The decoration is blue and white, the N. E. T. & T. Co. colors. In the booth are displayed different telephone sets: The farmers' set, the extension set, common battery will set, long arm swinging set, portable desk set, eight-inch Stearns dong, extension bell, etc. Telephone mysteries were explained by Mr. Haskell in an interesting manner. Free local service is given patrons of the Fair. Mikelsky's phonograph booth is next. Purple and white are the colors Here Misses Sophia and Bessie Mikelsky furnished the patrons with selections from the different machines which were appreciated. The elaborate horns used on the machines were a feature. They have many new records.
