

Suicide.

Last July, the 31st day, a man named David Frank, who was a Jew tramp from Baltimore, was taken in charge by the police as he was evidently insane. His mania was a strange one, He insisted he had lost his soul. He was taken to the almshouse, and lately seemed to be doing well. Yesterday while Mr. Randall was away from the house the engineer had occasion to go into the attic to make some repairs, and on his return he passed Frank's room. Looking in he saw the man suspended from a rail in the room. He went in and found that Frank had tied one end of a sheet to the rail, fastened the other end about his neck, and then kneeling had choked to death. Dr. King and Coroner Gould were called but considered an inquest unnecessary. Frank was 36 years old.
