Rabbi's Message

Greetings from New York

This Shabbat, Chabad Houses all over the world will be without rabbis. This weekend is the International Conference of Chabad-Lubavitch Emissaries, something most of us try to attend as often as we can.

The event is so huge that there is no banquet hall large enough to host it, and everyone from the New York Times to dozens of smaller outlets send their reporters. But the most powerful moments of the conference are the ones the reporters don't pick up on.

It's a rabbi spending an introspective moment at the Ohel, reflecting on his life mission. It's two friends waxing nostalgic about the times they spent learning Torah in 770. It's a young emissary rubbing shoulders with senior rabbis who serve as an important window into Chabad's rich and inspiring history. It's an emissary to a distant community feeling that he is not alone.

It's a feeling that cannot be put into words, but needs to be experienced in person.

And that is what keeps everyone going back time and time again.

Good Shabbos,
Rabbi Wilansky

Support Chabad

Be a partner in everything we do. Remember a dear one, honor a friend or a family member for an achievement, or just do a mitzva. Together, we can change ourselves, our community and the world for the better.

YOUR QUESTIONS

What Makes You Think the World Is Getting Better?

From the outside, you see nausea, cranky moods and a swelling belly. From the inside, you see an entire being miraculously forming and you still have no idea how that baby's going to make it out of there. Today, the raw facts show us a world preparing itself for something amazing.
