Born in New York City, Lawrence Elbroch has lived in several states and the United Kingdom before settling down in New England. He is a self-taught photographer, who continues to grow and push his work by taking workshops taught by notable photographers such as Sean Kernan, Michael Yamashita, Jack Montgomery, Eddie Soloway.

Lawrence is a state-juired member of both the League of New Hampshire Craftsmen and the New Hampshire Art Association. He is a past president of the League of New Hampshire Craftsmen's Board of Trustees and is currently on the Executive Committee for North Country Studio Workshops.

His aim is to take the viewer with him to Asia. Through traveling and interacting with other cultures, he has learned that we are more alike than different, but that it is our differences that are beautiful and maybe unique. He is particularly drawn to those who celebrate spirituality and who live closer to the earth. Many of his photographs are taken off the beaten track. He likes to wander and witness in an unobtrusive way and then tell the story through his photographs.
